To assess the effects of deploying a clinical information system (CIS) on clinical practice. Over the course of 16 months, we carried out a retrospective analysis of 100 patients who had undergone cardiac surgery at our institution during this period. Data were collected from medical records, using a validated ad hoc questionnaire to assess care before and after CIS. The questionnaire included domains such as: type of surgery, length of stay, ICU use, and post-operative complications. From the 101 patients, we had access to 92 patient records. After the deployment of the CIS, there was an increase in the mean time interval for the start of the antibiotic prophylaxis from 4.8 to 4.4 hours ($p = 0.02$), but no difference in the duration of the antibiotics, duration of ICU stay, or the occurrence of complications. The implementation of a CIS has improved the efficiency of care for patients undergoing cardiac surgery, but has not improved outcomes.Q: How to convert multidimensional array in different way?
