both flavours are based on the same code base. in fact, the 'professional' versions adds a few features including: undo/redo support and a session log a dynamic schedule view quota support in the form of user, daily, and session quotas support for.rvx sessions and project templates support for.rvx session recordings support for.mp4 session recordings support for plugins the undo/redo function is implemented using qt's native support for undo/redo, in combination with qt's native qapplication specific api. the undo/redo operations are directly accessible via the qapplication. undo/redo is very similar to the native undo/redo functions in other applications (e.g. msoffice, google chrome). the session log is a simple table where the user can keep track of all sessions. this supports undo/redo. for instance, the user can go back to previous sessions, or can re-record previous sessions if something went wrong. the session log can be used to see how long a user has used the application (i.e. session duration). qt has native support for managing quotas. this means that the symplo 'professional' versions supports user, daily, and session quotas. for instance, the user can be limited to a certain number of sessions. symplo' professional versions provides a setting which allows the user to control the number of daily sessions which are allowed. this allows the user to control how much time the user spends on day1, day2, day3, etc. rvx (recording video exchange) is a video file format based on the.mp4 file format used to store video in mobile devices. this means that symplo's 'professional' version supports rvx files and the project templates used for rvx sessions. symplo's 'professional' version also supports recording rvx sessions.

BPM Studio is a recording suite that lets you listen to, edit, mix and write music tracks with a professional set of DJing and mixing tools. Whether youre a professional DJ or just an avid music fan, this is a comprehensive system that has everything youll need to confidently and accurately mix your MP3s. Pros: Auto

BPM matching, CD writer, remote access. Cons: High price tag, only 30 original sounds with trial, only 5 equalizer presets. Conclusion: There is a lot to be impressed by with BPM Studio, though this is software only suitable for the serious music fan or DJ. The interface is a complex and intimidating set of mixing tools and settings, but professionals will find it strongly structured. BPM Studio excels as a mixer, with multiple cue points, auto BPM matching and 3 different cross fading settings to try. While the library access has a useful searching system and provides a relatively easy access point to your mp3 collection. Ultimately, this is a solid mixing suite, but at $650 for a full-license its definitely not the cheapest on the market. Your best bet is to give it a try with the trial download and then decide for yourself if its worth the price-tag. Bpm studio pro 5.01
